Greeting

Welcome to the 65th annual Writers Guild Awards at B.B. King Blues Club.

Although a blues club may seem like an unusual place for an awards show honoring writers, it's actually quite appropriate. As creative artists, musicians and writers often start with a blank page or an empty recording device and, at their best, may end up creating some of the most important works in American culture. The similarities do not end there, unfortunately. Early blues artists were frequently cheated out of songwriting and recording royalties. Today's writers and our colleagues in other creative fields still need to have our rights protected. That is why the Writers Guild is so important.

The WGAE and WGAW constantly work to retain the rights writers already have, while campaigning to extend coverage to other areas of programming and new types of distribution. As B.B. King himself once said, "When the wolf is trying to get in, you gotta stand in the doorway."

I'm thrilled that you're here to celebrate some of the best works that our members have produced in the past year. But don't let this be your only way of engaging with the Writers Guild. I encourage you to check out the WGAE's committees and caucuses, as well as its career training sessions, activities and organizing campaigns. If we want to keep honoring Guild-covered scripts in all areas, from radio news to blockbuster films, then we must work together to make sure that there will always be Guild-covered scripts to honor.

My heartfelt thanks go out to the show's wonderful host, Richard Kind; to all the impressive presenters and nominees; the incredibly dedicated Awards Committee; the tireless WGAE staff; the volunteers; my fellow Council members; my very patient husband, Chris; and everyone else involved in making tonight's show possible.

Oh, and one last thing—drink up and have a great time!

Bonnie Datt
Chair, WGAE Awards Committee

Bonnie Datt is a comedy writer and producer, fashion journalist, and, in a former life, an award-winning stand-up comic. Her writing credits span television, print, stage and the Web and include work for ABC, PBS, USA, Oxygen, MSNBC, UPN, Disney Channel, Racked.com and the infamous SPY magazine. Bonnie is an elected member of the WGAE Council, co-chair of its Animation Caucus, and one of the producers and writers of every WGAE Awards show since 2009.

"It's important to hold the high journalism values of the past. But ... we must evolve to deliver information readers want and need in ways that will move and reach them in the plugged-in world of today. Innovation and tradition shouldn't be mutually exclusive if media companies hope to survive."

Lynh Bui, SOC MA'13, Washington Post Fellow

Dean Jeffrey Rutenbeck and the faculty, staff and students of the American University School of Communication congratulate Lynh Bui. Our programs have been producing outstanding journalists for more than 80 years, providing a strong foundation in writing, reporting, editing, audio and video storytelling across multiple platforms.

Foundation

The MCMF, funded by the Charles and Lucille King Family Foundation, and presented in partnership with the WGAEF is awarded to a undergraduate senior who plans to pursue a career in screenwriting upon graduation. The recipient receives a $10,000 stipend to write an original screenplay under the mentorship of a prominent screenwriter.

The Writers Guild of America, East Foundation's mission is to perpetuate the art and craft of storytelling, either by professionals or amateurs, through education and practical experience, on local, national and global levels. For more information, visit: www.wgaeffoundation.org

The Charles & Lucille King Family Foundation (kingfoundation.org) was established in 1988 to support educational excellence and professional development in the film, television and related media fields, and has provided scholarships to hundreds of outstanding U.S. undergraduate students in these disciplines.

"Movies are the literature of this generation, and all subsequent generations. It's exciting to know that if you make a movie that in some way works, you're going to reach people, to become part of their autobiography. Just as you went to movies when you were a kid and got all your ideas about x or y from the movies, you can be part of that for people, you can give that."

What's your story? Find your voice. Tell it.

This "challenge to write" is a simple expression of what has become our unique vision – to share our skills as professional writers with those who wish to write, but haven't had a sufficient opportunity to do so. The ability to put into words who you are and what you experience is a powerful tool, one we've found many people long to develop.

The Writers Guild Initiative, the renaming of the Writers Guild of America, East Foundation, exists to take the art and craft of storytelling to underserved populations.

Our programs include:

HD Writing Workshops

Writing workshops for various military populations

Actors & Writers Book Club

Cultivating a love of literature through reading classical works of literature to high schools

Coleman Jacoby Young Comedy Writer Award

Finding the next generation of comedy voices and writers within high schools

Michael Collyer Memorial Fellowship in Screenwriting

Assisting a new screenwriting graduate take first steps in their career

OnLine Mentoring Program

Partnering with universities in mentorship and sharing writing expertise

PencilPALS

Writers becoming pen pals with 4th and 5th grade students, supporting them discovering their own voice

For more information about our programs, please visit our website: www.wgae.foundation.org.

If you would like to volunteer or have any questions, please email us at: wgae.foundation@wgaeast.org
