

November 4, 2020

As members of the Writers Guild of America, East, we are proud to stand with our comrades on the staff of the Committee to Protect Journalists in their demand for a fair contract.

The WGA East and CPJ share an institutional commitment to advocating for the safety, security, and freedom of writers. We therefore urge CPJ management to reinforce that commitment by agreeing to a union contract which:

- fosters a more diverse, equitable, and sustainable workplace through increased salary minimums and fair across-the-board pay increases; and
- demonstrates CPJ's recognition of—and investment in—their staff's work by codifying the organization's health and retirement benefits in the contract.

After a year of negotiations, it's time for a contract at the Committee to Protect Journalists.

In solidarity and support,
